

ABSTRACT

The present invention is directed toward a post-operative limb dressing and protection management system for below-the-knee amputees, preferably by providing a removable rigid dressing. The dressing of the present invention generally comprises a transparent thermo plastic liner that is covered by a removable rigid cast to provide relatively easy visual access to the limb.